LEADERS IN PRUNE DRIVE OPTOMISTIC AS GOAL NEARS

Just 14,000 tons short of the necessary 170,000 this afternoon, leaders in the prune pool drive are renewing their efforts for the final spurt. Approximately 80 per cent has signed, but that last five per cent, or about 5,000 tons each day for these last three days, will take a great amount of concentrated work before the drive is successful.

In an interview with the Campbell Press, Mr. Shuman, head of the public relations work of the drive declared that, though they were fairly certain of the final success of the drive, there could be no let-down in the work. He particularly complimented the Campbell district for their splendid sign-up, and assured the district that the prune pool headquarters greatly appreciated all that had been done here by the press, merchants and growers.

Santa Clara county sign-up has passed 90 per cent and was somewhere in the neighborhood of 94 per cent, a remarkably high total, Shuman added.

Yesterday, nearly 4,000 tons were signed, the largest amount since the ten day extension was granted, August 10. But there remains a tremendous amount of work if the drive is to go over the top by Saturday night, which is the absolute dead-line for the sign-up. The total tonnage needed is relatively small, but it is the vital margin needed. Without it, prune leaders predict, the condition of the industry will be chaotic, if not actually disastrous.

In a statement by the Prune Growers committee yesterday, the outcome was admitted to be somewhat doubtful. "Let there be no question about the issue. The statewide committee is withholding no tonnage. The specified 170,000 tons must be signed. We must have 85 per cent of the crop represented. Eighty-three per cent will not be enough. The returns must be certified by affidavits of Dr. H. R. Tolley, Dr. Theodore Macklin, and E. E. Kaufman. These men will not certify the tonnage unless it is actually there.

"If we don't sign the actual tonnage specified, the drive will have failed and we growers can look forward to no relief from the early season dumping of prunes, demoralized prices and no outlook for betterment for some years to come."

The unexpected rise in prune prices within the past few days in anticipation of a successful sign-up has served to indicate in an unmistakable way what may be looked for when the plan is in operation, points out drive officials. "The tonnage of prunes to market this season is the same, so the only reason for the rise is the expected stability which a completed sign-up will bring to the prune industry of California."

VISITING PARENTS

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Selvy of Carmel are visiting Mrs. Selvy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oluf Strom for a few days this week.

Goose Gives Goodbye Gasp in Successful Suicide Sensation!

"Farewell, Cru-el world. I'm leaving this vale of tears, this life of misery and selfishness, where one is born merely to furnish food for some monster. Farewell!"

And so, another resident of Campbell departed from this life. Departed amid much weeping and lamentation.

Thus ended the life of one goose, prized possession of Melville Voge, who drowned herself in an enameled vessel out of sheer boredom over the state of the world, and its place in it.

The goose was being carefully saved for some great event in the Voge family. Carefully it had been nurtured, abundantly had it been fed. But all in vain, for the feathered creature could see that her goose was cooked.

"That's gratitude", murmured Melville Voge as he sadly surveyed the corpse of the goose that never laid a golden egg—nor even a good brown roast.

Local Couple On Golden Wedding Anniversary Trip

Mr. and Mrs. B. Frank Harris celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary Monday in Reno, where they have gone for a week's anniversary trip, probably to show the inhabitants of that city what a golden wedding anniversary was like.

Mr. and Mrs. Harris have lived here for the past year and a half, and before that had made it a custom to spend their vacations here, where Harris spent his time painting with Frank Cutting, local artist. After Mr. Harris had retired from the Chicago Tribune where he had worked for thirty five years he came here to make his permanent home on Rincon aveune. His son, Fred Harris and family joined them here this year.

There are two daughters, Mrs. F. C. Gager of Saratoga and Mrs. D. E. Clark of Bakersfield and five grandchildren, Frank and Ross Gager, Danny Clark and Fred and Bert Harris.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Harris have been sending their felicitations to the couple for the past week.

SCHOOL OF HEALTH TO GIVE LECTURES

The Campbell School of Health offers an opportunity for you to obtain a home nursing course free of charge. The course will include studies in anatomy, physiology, first aid care of the baby, simple treatments and simple nursing proceedures, all of which will prove invaluable at many turns ahead

The first class will be held Saturday night August 20 at 7:30 p.m. There will be twenty classes, two each week for ten weeks. All are welcome. For information phone Campbell 95. Mrs. J. Lee Neil is in charge.

The regular lectures continue on Monday nights at 8 p. m. "Ten scientific reasons why I am a vegetarian" is the subject next Monday night at the meeting at the Community hall.

Chicken Thieves Get Six Months Sentence

Milton Lillie and Joseph Chavalia, who plead guilty to chicken stealing several weeks ago, were sentenced to six months in the county jail and two years probation thereafter, by Judge R. R. Syer last Friday. This was considered an extremely light sentence especially since County Probation Officer Max Watson did not recommend probation.

After they are released from the county jail they are to pay L. Shelley, local rancher from whom the chickens were stolen, $1.25 for each of the 125 chickens they confessed to have taken. Lillie and Chavalia were arrested by Officers Evans, Coupland and Covey last June.

LOCAL HI SCHOOL GRADUATE KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Earl, "Whitey" Gilbert, 19, of Willow Glen died Monday as the result of an automobile accident Sunday morning near Felton. He was rushed to the Santa Cruz hospital but did not regain consciousness, dying in the afternoon, with his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Gilbert of 1077 Brace at the bedside.

Gilbert was riding in a car driven by Lloyd LaHue of San Jose and they were accompanied by two young women. LaHue evidently had turned too quickly and rammed into the side of the bridge. The other occupants of the car escaped serious injury.

The funeral was held yesterday, in San Jose.

Gilbert attended the Campbell high school for a number of years and was well known here.

COMMERCE GROUP WILL HOLD DANCE SATURDAY NIGHT

Saturday night at 8:30 is the time, and the high school annex is the place for Campbell's Chamber of Commerce dance. With lively music to be furnished by Noyer's orchestra and with the annex gaily decorated in Spanish colors, those in charge of the affair expect a lively and pleasant evening.

Tickets may be purchased from the Boy Scouts, or at Shadle's Drug store. The money made from the dance will be used for such items as painting the signs leading into Campbell and the erection of new and necessary ones and other community improvements.

ANDERSON HOLDS BRIDGE EVENING

Mrs. F. R. Anderson was hostess to the members of her bridge club last evening at her home on Campbell avenue. After an evening of bridge the hostess served delicious refreshments. Mrs. Mabel Young received the prize for high score and Mrs. Margaret Burgess received a prize for low score.

Those present were Mrs. Young, Mrs. Burgess, Mrs. Virginia Young Mrs. Anna Bachman, Mrs. Ellen Lanphear, Mrs. Wilmay Lea and Mrs. Merle Knappen.

AID NEEDED TO PROVIDE LUNCHES FOR CHILDREN

Campbell Groups Open Drive To Furnish Meals for Hungry School Children; Supplies Needed

For hungry children!

With this as their plea, a group of Parent-Teachers and a few others, have asked for the aid of the citizens of Campbell to help them carry on their work of feeding those grammar school children who otherwise would not have a lunch.

Last year this group worked quietly but efficiently and were able to serve 6,421 lunches to children during the school year. This year, especially during the winter months, they feel that it will be necessary to give even greater assistance if they are to feed all the needy pupils. With the help of various organizations and individuals, they received fruit, sugar, jars and money enough to serve these lunches—at the average cost of but ten cents a meal. Such organizations as the Parent-Teachers Association, Ainsley's, Campbell Relief Society, Young Women's Service Club and the Pundita Circle gave generously. While other schools in the Santa Clara valley were forced to discontinue these lunches in the spring because of lack of funds and lack of support, the Campbell group kept up their work until school closed.

This year, this organization, headed by Miss Rowena Farman, home economics teacher at the grammar school, is asking for jars for canning the fruit that has been donated. A great deal of fruit has already been received but more is still needed, especially apples and peaches. The kitchen at the grammar school resembles a miniature cannery as the women of the P. T. A. prepare the fruit for the lunches of the winter. According to Miss Farman, more women are needed to aid in the canning which has been going on for the past two weeks. They have already canned over 350 quart jars of fruit.

With school opening on Sept. 12, the organization in charge still have a great deal of fruit to can, and there is an urgent need for jars and help to get the fruit canned while it is still available and before school opens.

"Any contribution which will aid in giving these poor children at least one meal a day will be greatly appreciated," Miss Farman said yesterday, "but right now there is nothing we need more than the jars for the fruit. If we were forced to buy jars, it would deplete our small and precious reserve of money, money that must be saved to help purchase the hot dishes and milk that make up part of the lunches."

According to Miss Farman, many of these children would be unable to attend school at all, if these noon meals were not available. And in many, many cases, it is the only substantial and wholesome meal they get during the day.

The method of distributing these free meals is one that insures their going to the children that need them, and to them only. First, an investigating committee, headed by Mrs. C. Girard sees to it that every child is deserving of these meals. If the parents are able to properly feed the children, the meal is not given to them. After the needs of the children are determined,

Help Wanted To Aid In Preparing Fruit For Needy Children

A special call for assistance in canning the fruit donated to the Lunch For Needy School Children has been sent out by Miss Rowena Farman. A large quantity of fruit has come in and it must be canned this week. A large group of women are needed Friday afternoon, beginning at 1 o'clock.

"Any woman that could give her time to help with the work would be eagerly welcomed. The work is for a good cause, and I know that the citizens of this town will aid us," Miss Farman said. "Remember, Friday at 1 o'clock, at the cafeteria entrance of the grammar school."

Jars, jar caps and rubbers and more fruit are also urgently needed so that all the fruit can be taken care of Friday.

Shower For Recent Bride Given Here

Mrs. Calvin Bohnett entertained at a kitchen shower in honor of her niece Miss Lillian Gard last evening. The rooms were prettily decorated with lovely bouquets of zinnias and gladiolus in various shades.

The guest of honor is the daughter of Mrs. Emily Pannell Gard and was graduated from the Campbell high school a few years ago and has spent most of her life in Campbell. She was married Saturday morning to Thomas Maloney of Santa Clara.

After a pleasant evening of bridge, refreshments were served by the hostess.

Those invited were: Mrs. Gayno Eddlemon, Mrs. Fred Rost, Mrs. Bert Campbell, Mrs. Alice Crews, Miss Wilma Smith, Miss Helen Lumb, and Miss Grace Bohnett of Campbell; Mrs. Henry George, Mrs. Roland Parr, and Mrs George Gordon of San Jose; Mrs. Emily Gard and Mrs. Maloney of Santa Clara.

IN YOUNGVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Kersgard were visitors in Youngville, Napa county, Sunday. While there they attended the Manila Day celebration.

FOR THE CHILDREN

In the last two years there have been many appeals for help. There have been many cases where help was most urgently needed to keep people in food and clothing and shelter. They were worthy appeals, and Campbell gave freely and openly. But with this issue, we publish the opening of a drive that deserves the support of all, more than any other drive in which we have participated.

The Parent-Teachers association have asked for the cooperation of the citizens of Campbell in helping them provide lunches for the needy children of our grammar school. These children often get only this one full meal a day, as their parents are in many cases entirely destitute. It is the only thing that keeps many of them in school, or even fairly well nourished. Somehow, they must be fed; they must be taken care of, for they are the future citizens of the community. They are the Campbell that is to be. It is up to the citizens of now to see that the citizens of the future take their places as healthy, educated, forward-looking men and women. Such would not be the case if they are unable to attend school, nor if they have not enough to keep themselves decently alive.

We ask everyone in Campbell to help in this work, to aid to the very limit of their possibilities. The need is great, the cause worthy and the benefit supreme.

This organization is asking, now, for jars so that they can can some of the fruit that has been given to them. And they are asking for the help of women to aid them in this work. Elsewhere in this issue the details of that plea can be found. Here, we can do no more than reiterate their appeal and give our approval, nay, our aid and encouragement to them. They have worked quietly for a long time, doing all they could without ballyhoo or fanfare. Last year they did mighty work, and did it well. This year they will need even more help, for the need is even greater. So they appeal to all of you for support. You must not fail them, and if you could but see some of the hungry little children who come to school without an adequate breakfast and who expect to go home to very little supper—if you could see them enjoying the ample school cafeteria lunches, you would give freely and willingly and there would be no need to write this. But all of you cannot see all of them, nor read the letters written by mothers who are forced to keep their children home from school because they will not send them to classes hungry.

Everything that is done for the children is done without profit. There are no administration expenses, no paid welfare workers. There are only a few women with big hearts who could not, nor will not see these children go hungry. They will continue to do all they can, but they are no longer able to do all that must be done. They, and we, ask your aid.

A GOOD SIGN

Walking down the main streets of San Jose or San Francisco, one is struck by the number of closed stores, or by the large number of stores placarded with "going out of business" signs. Here is the living proof of the depression, the most tangible example of conditions. Store after store has used up its capital and been forced to close. It is the price of the depression.

Here in Campbell, though there are many signs of the depression, that most obvious one is fortunately missing. Practically no business has been forced to close its doors because of the depression. Many have had their profits greatly cut and all have felt the pinch of the times. But all of them have managed to survive and all will be in a position to welcome a return of prosperity, when it comes. So, we are just a little more fortunate than most places, and knowing that we should take heart in our ability to win out, no matter how long it might take.

EXPERIENCE NEEDED

Being a congressman is like any other business, whether it be real estate, brick-laying, doctoring or anything else, it takes experience to do it well. And the first few years at any business is but an apprenticeship, the learning of the business, during which you are not of great value to your business nor to your customer.

Arthur M. Free has been a member of congress for 12 years. He served his apprenticeship long ago and has for the past decade contributed much to the prestige of this district as an important and valuable business partner in the work of congress. Aside from his remarkable work, he has, through the rule of seniority, advanced to a high position in the more important congressional committees. Now, after 12 years of work, he is in a position to do even more for the eighth district. No other man, no matter how good he was, could exert the great influence that now belongs to Congressman Free. It would be years before any other man could honestly fill the shoes of the incumbent, even if we grant that there are other candidates of his high calibre.

That this is not so can easily be shown by comparing the record of any of the candidates with that of Arthur M. Free. But it is not our policy to defame, to deal in cheap personalities, nor to cast aspersionos upon the participants in the coming elections. In this case it is not necessary; one has merely to look at the record of Mr. Free and judge whether anyone else in 12 years could do as much, or as well.

Mr. Free has supported the relief program which will eventually bring us out of the depression. He has opposed fly-by-night inflation schemes that appeal to radicals and demagogues. He helped reduce federal expenditures millions of dollars. He aided in putting the American merchant marine on the seas again, and led in the fight to restrict immigration.

He has not only done his duty as a legislator for the entire nation, and one we can be proud to offer to the nation, but he has done more than any other man for the district that sent him to congress. He obtained the Sunnyvale air base, federal buildings at San Jose, Palo Alto and Monterey. He had the lower San Francisco bay opened up, had the San Bruno shoals dredged, and obtained a tariff on the farm products of his district. More than that, he secured millions of dollars for borrowing purposes for the marketing of California agricultural goods.

Such is a partial list of what this man has done for his district. We believe that this record speaks far more for him than anything we could say. When it comes to the final analysis, it will be this record that will determine his fate. It will be this record which will last when all the defaming and praising has been forgotten. It is on his record alone that he stands for reelection to congress from the eighth district.

HAPPY DAYS ARE HERE AGAIN?

Predictions that good times are "just around the corner" have been made so often and so often have failed to come true that prophesying along that line has become a form of mental activity in which few people care to indulge. And yet—

Good news of returning good times continues to pour in from all over the country, particularly from the industrial centers of the east, the middle west and the south. Without doubt the past 60 days, and notably the past 30 days have witnessed a definite upward trend in business throughout the country with commodity prices higher, postal receipts increased, factories reopening and vast public works programs getting under way slated to give steady employment to a quarter of a million men during the next year.

In Kansas 20,000 men will soon be put to work upon public roads, and activity along similar lines will prevail in nearly all other states in response to the generous appropriations made by congress for public construction.

A definite industrial pick-up in Ohio, Iowa, Illinois, Michigan, West Virginia and Missouri, as well as in the East, is revealed by commercial surveys. In New England conditions continue to improve and scores of manufacturing plants have either reopened or extended their operations.

In Pennsylvania two steel plants have resumed operations after months of inactivity and other mills also have reopened.

And so it comes from every point of the compass. There is no question but that merchants' shelves everywhere are all but empty, due to the fear that prices might go still lower. With the conviction returning that bottom has been reached, commercial logic will call for purchases this week through fear that prices may be higher next week, consumer buying will be speeded up for the same reason, hence increased orders to manufacturers in all lines.

BOOKS

By Mrs. Lillian Voge

In these days when children try to run their parents, it behooves mother to read a book on how to run the children. Such a book is The Modern Parent, by Garry Meyers. Seriously, however, this book is intended to urge upon the parent a more sympathetic treatment of the children. The chapter headings enumerate the faults of the parents. Parents who:

Are discourteous to their children.

Rob their children of responsibility.

Play on the heartstrings of their children.

Dr. Meyers does not for a moment advocate spoiling the child. A calm firmness and consistency are the most necessary qualities for successful parentage. Every mother with toddlers should read and practice his method of safeguarding the child from accident.

Some of the chapter headings for parents are:

Respecting the child's right to property.

Teaching physical courage.

Preventing stubborness.

Looking at person with whom conversing.

Learning to relax.

Right and wrong parental self-denial.

To quote from Dr. O'Shea's introduction:

"The book may be heartily recommended to parents, teachers and all who are responsible for the bringing up of the young. The reading of this book will not increase parents' burdens; on the contrary it will lighten them because it will reduce conflicts between adults and children, and it will convince the reader that those who train the young will have greater success if they maintain poise and self-control than if they become worryful, excited, and vengeful in respect to a considerable proportion of so-called misdemeanors in childhood and in youth."

The following are the list of recommended books for the week, selected by Mrs. Voge, Campbell librarian:

John Marsh. Pioneer, by George D. Lyman. The life story of a trail-blazer on six frontiers. A New England college student, who was teacher and Indian fighter in Michigan and Minnesota, wealthy landowner and the first American doctor in California. This book is more fascinating than a novel.

Additional Means Made Available To Market Excess Food For Needy

San Francisco, Aug. 18—Considerable quantities of excess California foodstuffs available for distribution to the distressed people of the state have been reported to the offices of the State Food Administration here and a transportation group, appointed by Food Administrator Dudley Moulton, is attempting to determine how these stores may be moved into the hands of the relief agencies.

The transportation group, which includes railroads, steamships and trucking lines, held a meeting today to grapple with the problem, do everything possible to see that everything possible to see that these goods are moved with the least possible delay.

Among the items offered the state are five carloads of oranges in Southern California and stores of potatoes, onions, carrots and canned goods in other parts of the state. These stores are being reported by county committees set up by the Food Administration.

Two separate groups of committees named by Moulton and a state wide committee set up by the State Department of Social Welfare, of which Mrs. Rheba Crawford Splivalo is director, are functioning to both concentrate supplies and give them the speediest possible clearance. The Food Administration committees are groups representing each food commodity reporting an excess and a committee in each county, consisting of a member of the Board of Supervisors, the County Agricultural Commissioner and one or more welfare workers, to determine the volume and the nature of the local surplus and how it may be utilized both locally and at other points.

In addition the State Food Administration has constituted itself as a clearing house to provide for the bringing in of relief foodstuffs not readily available locally and local surplus stocks that might be used to better advantage elsewhere. In this manner it is hoped to strengthen local relief agencies through an even and equitable distribution of the surplus, no matter where the source of such surplus may lie, and at the same time permit such local agencies to carry on their own work with the least possible interference.

Each offer of foodstuffs when received by this central clearing house is checked and reported to the statewide relief committee, which is headed by Milton Esberg of San Francisco. In addition the state bureau of commerce, headed by Simon J. Lubin, is notified, to determine if any of the foodstuffs may be available for distribution at any point outside the state.

"Immediately upon the formation of the state food administration we conducted a survey to determine how it could best operate," Administrator Moulton said today. "This survey revealed at once that many of the counties and cities have smoothly operating and effective relief organizations. With such well equipped agencies already in the field, it developed that the state's chie finterest should be to strengthen them to the greatest possible degree by making all of California's food surplus available to them on call, if possible, and by caring for any surplus that they individually could not utilize.

"That is why we have provided the central clearing house within the state organization and for the formation of the county relief councils.

"The state food administration is operating without funds, and without a paid personnel—two tremendous handicaps. But we are going to see this thing through, if it is humanly possible, and the splendid cooperation we are receiving from the two other participating state departments, from our own various committee groups and from the public at large is most heartening."

Increase In Rural Population Grows And Grows Content

One of the interesting reports which political scouts are said to be taking back to Washington is one to the effect that the average farmer, in spite of the depression, and in spite of the low levels to which commodity prices have descended, is no longer so embittered and discouraged as he was a few years ago. There is of course a good reason for this, finding its roots in human nature itself.

Since the depression descended on the urban population in full force, the farmer has come to find out that after all he is not so bad off as a great many other people in the country. He can at least eat and maintain a roof over his head, and can always find some market for what he has to sell.

In the days of industrial prosperity when factories were busy day and night turning out automobiles, radios and electric equipment and so on down the line, the farmer on his visits to the city gathered the impression that everybody was on the road to becoming a millionaire but himself. He saw the shiny new automobiles which were being driven to the factories every day, not only by officials but by workmen, and heard marvelous tales of the high wages which could be obtained by the artisan for seven or eight hours work. When he contemplated the fact that he, himself, had to work from daylight to dusk for what in many years amounted to little more than a living, after taxes and repair bills were paid, he naturally became dissatisfied because so little of this urban prosperity would trickle on through to him.

But the depression has changed all this. While it has not helped the plight of the farmer, it has brought the man in the city down to a level which has enabled the farmer to extend sympathy rather than display envy. And finding that the city worker, when factories are closed and there are no markets for finished products, may face not only eviction but an actual shortage of the necessities of life, the farmer is gradually coming to the conclusion that perhaps he is not so bad off after all.

The truth of this survey is at least partially borne out by the fact that the farm population of the nation has gained 648,000 during the year 1931. There has been a surprising increase in the back to the farm movement especially in the south and west. The boys who went to the city, and the families which moved there a few years ago to get in on the high wages, are now gradually going back to the country. In addition a number of city dwellers, like the farmers, are beginning to realize that the country isn't such a bad place after all, since one with a little labor can always get something to eat.

In a statement on this increase in farm population the bureau of agricultural economics recently said:

"The increase in 1931 was the largest and most significant recorded by the bureau of agricultural economics in the ten years in which the bureau has been estimating changes in population. For seven years of this period annual decreases were reported and only during 1930 and 1931 were appreciable gains indicated.

"The bureau estimates that 1,472,000 persons left farms for towns and cities last year, and that 1,679,000 persons moved farmward. The surplus of births over deaths on farms was 441,000.

"For the year 1930 it was estimated that 1,766,000 persons moved from cities to farms and 1,727,000 persons moved from farms to cities—these two movements almost balancing each other. The surplus of births over deaths was 399,000 in 1930. There was a slight decrease in the number of persons going to farms in 1931, and a considerable decrease in the number going to cities.

In the movement from cities to farms for both 1930 and 1931, and continuing into 1932, were many farmers' sons and daughters who had previously migrated to towns and cities. Many of these upon losing their city jobs have returned to the home farm, many bringing families with them. Some city families have found refuge on the farms of other relatives.

"These figures do not take into account another change that has been widely heralded as a "back-to-the-farm" movement, a change that has been under way since 1930. Many city and town families are now planting subsistence gardens on one-fourth to two acres where formerly they purchased all of their food."

Of course we all hope and believe that before long a measure of prosperity will return to the cities. But when it comes there will be an accompanying increase in farm prosperity, so that next time we shall all hope to go up economically together, so maintaining a sound and healthful progress.

SERVING AN APPRENTICESHIP

C. C. COTTRELL

IN any skilled craft, a man must serve an adequate apprenticeship before he becomes a full-fledged journeyman. How much more important it is that a public official should have served an apprenticeship, too, in the service of the public before being trusted with a position of responsibility and leadership. College trained, a war-time flier in France, a practicing attorney and as a public servant for six years on the district attorney's staff, C. C. Cottrell has served his apprenticeship and prepared himself to represent the taxpayers and voters of the Thirty-first Assembly District. He is a man whom you can trust and who merits your support and vote.

Auto Association Celebrates Quarter Century of Progress

Marking a milestone of progress in the history of motoring development in this state, the California State Automobile association this week celebrates its 25th anniversary. The automobile association was founded as a non-profit, co-operative organization of car owners on Aug. 17, 1907, by a small group which met in San Francisco. The primary purpose of the founders was to work for good roads, which were then almost entirely lacking, in contrast to the fine highway system of today. There were then only 14,000 motor cars in the state, compared to a present total of more than two million. From the beginning the growth of the automobile association has closely paralleled the advance of motoring in California. Rounding the quarter-century mark, the association ranks as the second largest organization of motorists in the world and the largest of the nation-wide chain of clubs affiliated with the American Automobile association.

When the California State Automobile association was launched the motor age was still in its infancy. The contrast between conditions then and now are pointed out in a statement by E. B. De Golia, president of the assocoiation, commenting upon the advent of the silver anniversary. Paved roads were practically unknown outside of cities. Road signs were few and these were conflicting and unreliable. Dependable road maps of touring information were not to be had. The motorist in any difficulty had to shift for himself. Motor vehicle laws reflected a general prejudice against the "horseless carriage."

Leading the way toward improving those conditions, the association has steadily grown in size and usefulness. Its membership today is in excess of 80,000. Highway development has remained in the forefront of the association's civic policies, and it has successfully supported financing and other measures for a system of modern motor routes serving all parts of the state. As the official road signing agency for northern and central California the association has developed a standard, uniform system of warning and directional signs, representing today an investment of more than a million dollars. Three-quarters of this expense has been borne by the association out of membership dues, the remainder being contributed by state, county and local governments.

The cost of maintaining the road sign system, amounting to upward of $40,000 a year, is met entirely by the association out of its own funds.

Supporting the growth of motor tourist travel, the association has fostered development of transcontinental routes such as the Victory highway and Lincoln highway. The legislative bureau of the association has functioned at sessions of the legislature for many years, as the recognized spokesman of California car owners, opposing unfair laws and taxation and supporting constructive measures. Educational and other efforts to meet the traffic accident problem are conducted by the association public safety department.

While carrying on such activities for the benefit of all motorists, the association has developed an array of personal services for members, such as mechanical first aid and towing, tire changes, maps and touring information, assistance in damage claims arising from automobile accidents, and many other services smoothing the way for the motorist.

In an anniversary message to members, President DeGoolia comments in part as follows:

"Vital and strong in all the elements of permanence, the association passes this milestone of progress and presses ahead into a future which holds only the most complete assurance of steadily widening usefulness and value to its members and all motorists."

WHAT DELAYS ULTIMATE END OF ALL WAR

By Rev. C. E. Irons

"The next war will be a jewel. It will far surpass anything that the world has ever seen." This remark was made in my presence within the past week. I replied, "Just when will the next war be?" My friend replied, "Well, everything seems to be working that way."

Now, just why should this be so when everybody knows that war is a total loss? Nothing is left to anybody engaged in it but an evil spirit, ill will toward others, a heavy burden of debt, and an obstruction to progress. All the nations of the world, save three small South American republics signed a solemn engagement that they would never again enter into war for the settlement of any of their disputes. Did this mean anything? Men, whose word in private life is worth 100 per cent, when elected to public office seem to forget that morals are morals, and should be so. Japan signed this agreement and then when she attacked China used all sorts of subterfuges to try to convince the world that she was not waging war against China. I think it will not be hard for Japan to understand the spirit of the courageous words of our President Hoover in his speech of acceptance when he declared, "That we do not and never will recognize title to possession of territory gained in violation of the peace pacts. That doctrine has been accepted by all the nations of the world, and on a recent critical occasion, and within the last few days has been accepted again by all the nations of the western hemisphere."

Space forbids entering into any extended argument on this subject which is as broad as the world itself, but we venture a few suggestions which may give us food for thought.

An old saying, "Possession is nine points of the law." The war system, handed down to us from a world totally unlike our own, still exists; has existed for centuries and is deeply entangled in every phase of our national life. The hold of war will be broken when peace is seen to be an economic necessity, when our people are lifted to the plain where it becomes an educational objective, when it is felt as an emotional need. We are attempting to have peace without quite giving up war and often find ourselves in a vicious entanglement.

Our national activities, our policies, our attitudes of mind are what they are because our international relations are based fundamentally upon acceptance of the principle of war. These activities, policies and attitudes imply war and tend toward it. The brotherhood of the world is being destroyed by the spirit of greed. One nation seems to be trying to set itself over against all the other nations of the world in a vain attempt to secure power or financial gain. The world has become too small for any nation to feel that it can become prosperous by itself. World interests have become such that we must stand and grow together, or we shall fail together. All the industrial systems of the world are such that prosperity depends upon our exchange of products and yet we continue to raise high tariff walls and to restrict the movements of raw materials and capital, on the old theory that political units can and should be sufficient within themselves. We renounce war and then do our utmost to outdo our neighbors just a bit in the increase of our armaments and experiments with poison gas. We make great pretense for peace and then spend millions of the people's money for summer encampments where we may train our young men, and our young women (God save the mark) for war, and many of our educational institutions interpret patriotism in terms of military service.

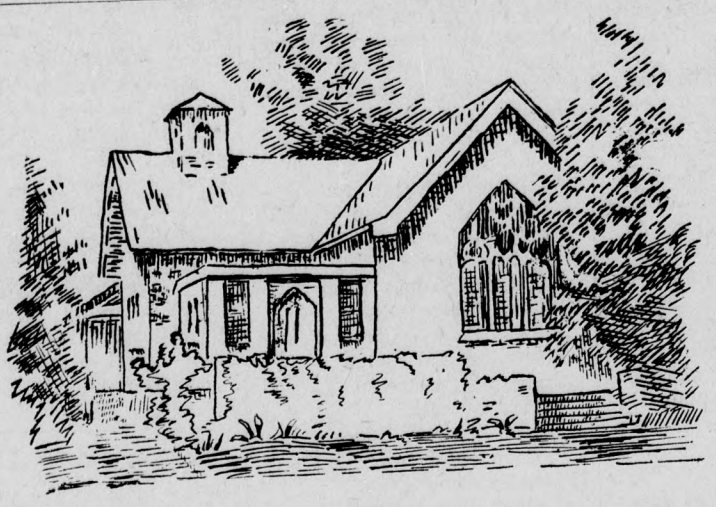
If this world were economically united, and we each sought, not merely our own satisfaction and advancement, the causes for war would be very materially lessened. But inequality in the distribution of wealth has led to rivalry and conflict. In primitive days, when one nation, or people, felt that their needs demanded what another possessed, war was the natural outcome. But the world has progressed away beyond that state of mind until, today, there is a growing realization that the economic interests behind war have become the interests of only a few. Our best statesmen do now feel that we should have an economically united world, and that general prosperity cannot be achieved by war, and even the seeming prosperity that seems to come to the few is in reality false.

Mechanical production means that the surplus of products must be sold in foreign markets. This will lead to rivalry, but does not necessarily mean war. Christian men are coming to feel that there is another and a better way to settle difficulties.

Unequal distribution of population, since now there are so few unsettled areas, tends to an attempted expansion by certain governments at the expense of others, and illwill is often engendered by nations erecting restrictions seriously interfering with this desire in the congested areas.

If people continue to live in the past ages and ignore the changed world conditions, irritation is bound to be the result. Old policies must be changed and the change must be effected by our most progressive government officials and statesmen until public opinion shall be enlightened on the new facts of world life, until a new manner of approach shall be effected.

Such method of approach is being adopted by the series of economic international conferences that have been held since the war. Business leaders of Europe and America have organized the International Chamber of Commerce for the promotion of "peace and prosperity." They declared that the "chief responsibility of government" is the solution of the problem of removing the fear of war, and has pointed out that the general economic welfare of all countries is a necessary foundation for the prosperity of any one country.



And God said: Let there be light.

Tonight, Evangelist J. Lee Neil will speak on "God's Last Message of Warning" at the Community Hall. Jerusalem had her warning through a special message and there is a special message due today, Neil declared.

Sunday night the subject will be "The United States in Prophecy," its rise and future. The evangelist expects to show how our nation is pictured in "The Revelation."

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH NOTES

Rev. J. H. Bennett will have for his Sunday morning sermon the topic: "Christ's Refusal of Four Young Men—Why?" A Challenge to Youth.

Attorney D. T. Jenkins, candidate for superior judge, will be the main speaker at the evening gathering. He will make an important contribution to the social study of Mr. Bennett's work with an interesting talk on "The Cost of Crime." The evening services will be held at 7:45 o'clock.

Sunday night the C. E. will hold a group discussion meeting. The All-College group is particularly asked to attend as there will be a debate led by Chauncey Watson in which Rev. Bennett will participate.

CUB SCOUTS

The Cub Scouts will meet Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Scout hall, according to an announcement by Rev. J. H. Bennett. There will be a meeting, and games will be played.

BELOW appear the names of the professional men and Santa Clara county official leaders who have, by their endorsement and support, made possible this department of the Campbell Press . . . A REFUGE FROM THE STORM

By Mrs. Ada C. Bohrman

As we journey along life's pathway, we need a higher strength than our own to help us over the rough places. Where can we find it? Isaiah found his strength in the Lord God Almighty. "For Thou hast been a strength to the poor, a strength to the needy in his distress, a refuge from the storm, a shadow from the heat when the blast of the terrible one is as a storm against the wall." Isa. 25:4. A refuge from the storm! There truly seems to be a storm raging in the world today—depression, worry, men's hearts failing them for fear. However, I am glad there is a refuge from the storm—a place of quietness and rest. "And the work of righteousness shall be peace, and the effect of righteousness, quietness and assurance forever. And my people shall dwell in a peacable habitation ,and in sure dwellings, and in quiet resting places." Isa. 32:17-18.

God is able to take us into that resting place with Him—that refuge from the storm—if we will yield ourselves unreservedly to Him and allow Him to have His way in our lives.

Have you reached that abiding place in Jesus?
Are you grafted in the true and living vine?
There is rest from every care in that secret place of prayer—
There is victory for you all along the line.

HEALTH SCHOOL STUDIES CANCER

Many interested listeners heard "What we know about cancer" at a meeting of the Campbell School of Health at the community hall last week.

Dr. Lenore D. Campbell, speaker of the evening, stated that cancer is not contagious nor catching by contact, neither is it hereditary. However, it is rapidly increasing and is a cause of grave concern especially in meat-eating countries. Observations by eminent medical authorities show cancer almost unknown where the diet is fleshless and simple, according to Dr. Campbell. In the United States one out of ten persons over 40 years of age die of cancer. Dr. Campbell urged early attention to every symptom of suspicious character.

Home nursing classes have been organized. Twenty classes successfully completed entitles one to a certificate which represents a well trained home nurse. Further applications will be received at the meetings at the Community hall on the nights when the school of health is held.

KIWANIS NOTES By Heck

Rev. Charles Irons spoke to the Kiwanis club Tuesday on "The American Morale," giving special emphasis to the spirit of world peace. He urged that all should bring pressure to bear in official circles to the end that the peace of the world might be speedily accomplished through the cooperation of the United States with other countries in all "peace channels."

Rev. Joseph H. Bennett as chairman, in a few words, seconded the speaker's peace plea.

A group of the local officers will go to Palo Alto next Wednesday evening to attend a district confab.

WEEK-END PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Dunlap and son Robert, Paul Kerr and Carlton Hyman spent the week-end at the Dunlap cottage in Redwood Estates. They were joined Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. James Knappen, Mrs. Merle Knappen and Walter Smily. Later, Miss Virginia Caldwell and Miss Betty Bates of Berkeley drove down from the Bay city to spend the afternoon visiting their friends here.

THE FARMERS CORNER

By Ralph H. Taylor

Encompassing both tax reduction and tax equalization in a single act, with an estimated saving to farm-owning and home-owning taxpayers of at least $5,000,000 annually, California legislators, at the session opening next January, will be asked to approve a new deal in the distribution of the state's gas tax revenues.

Advocated by the Agricultural Legislative Committee of California, representing the state's farm cooperatives and farm commodity groups, the two-fold tax reduction equalization proposal contemplates the following rearrangement in the highway building setup:

1. Allocation to the counties of an extra half-cent of the state's 3-cent gasoline tax, making the apportionment on a 50-50 basis—one and a half cents to the state and the same to the counties. This would decrease state highway expenditures by about $5,000,000 yearly and increase the counties' share in gas tax returns by the same amount.

2. Abolition of the rural road tax in every county in the state, or at least a heavy reduction in the tax, commensurate with the increased share in state receipts. The extra allocation to the counties would be made contingent on a like reduction in local road taxes, or their complete abolition.

Farm property, hard hit by the local road tax, which averages from 45 cents to 55 cents per hundred dollars valuation in most Californian counties, would benefit by an immediate and material tax reduction under the new proposal, it was determined in investigations conducted by the agricultural legislative committee.

And the $5,000,000 saving to local taxpayers—equalizing their tax burden, as well as lighening it—would be accomplished without imposing any additional state tax. It would represent an actual cash reduction in the cost of government.

While the additional $5,000,000 allocation to the counties might fall short, slightly, of the total amount now raised by local road taxes, any county, by reasonable economy in its road building program, could abolish its road tax entirely, according to the results of state-wide surveys. The actual saving to taxpayers, as a result, might top the $5,000,000 mark and amount to between $6,000,000 and $7,000,000 annually.

The growing belief that the state highway revenues have increased to a point in excess of actual requirements, together with the fact that present economic conditions and burdensome taxes demand drastic retrenhcment in every branch of government, also add to the practicability of the new plan.

In support of the contention that the $5,000,000 annual decrease in expenditures on state highways could be effected without damage to the state system, state financial experts cite the following facts:

It was generally agreed in 1928, when the 3-cent gas tax was adopted, that $25,000,000 annually was as great an amount as could be expended efficiently and economically on the state highway system.

These revenues today exceed $35,000,000 annually—$10,000,000 per year in excess of estimated maximum requirements.

It is worthy of note, in this regard, that even with the $5,000,000 additional allotment to the counties, to permit abolition of the local road tax, the state's highway revenues would still exceed by approximately $5,000,000 per year the normal requirements set up when the gas tax was adopted.

SPEEDWAY RACING WILL START SOON

San Jose, Aug 18—Sixteen of the country's most famous knights of the roaring road have already entered the 100-lap auto racing classic scheduled on the rebuilt San Jose Speedway Sunday afternoon, August 28. This meet, sanctioned by the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association, will be the first battle of speed and thrills under the rules of this organization since the Pacific Coast stars went to Indianapolis in May.

Linn Mathewson, manager of the San Jose Speedway announced today that two San Jose favorites, Ernie Triplett, 1931 Pacific Coast racing champion, and Wilbur Shaw of Indianapolis have already filed their entries. Triplett last year was one of the most consistent winners on the local ovel and he did much to cinch his title by annexing victory after victory here.

One new face will make its appearance here on the twenty-eighth in the person of Leon Duray, the great French driver whose name is a by-word with fans at Indiana polis. Duray has the distinction of having driven faster on a circular track than any living man.

The list of entries in addition to Triplett, Shaw and Duray includ: Sam Palmer, Kelly Petillo, Mel McKee, Lester Spangler, Guy Dulin, Chet, Gardner, Bob Scovell Lloyd Vieaux, H. D. Provan, Carl Ryder, Lou Tomei, Chris Vest and Frank Suess, it was announced today by Mathewson.

LOCAL GRANGE ELECTS MEMBER

Dr. Charles Breuer was instructed in the first and second degrees at a recent meeting of the Orchard City Grange at I.O.O.F. hall. Mrs. Ida M. Clendenning, captain of the degree team, and her staff, conducted the ceremony.

Mrs. Harry Barnes gave an account of her travels in a recent tour through Texas and other southwestern states. She gave a vivid and interesting description of the Grand Canyon and other beauty spots. Mrs. Witherspoon gave a reading in southern dialect, "A Snake Story."

The usual business meeting was presided over by the worthy master, W. H. Woodbury.

NEEDY CHILDRENS LUNCH HEADS ASK FOR JARS, FRUIT

a ticket with "Special Meal" is given to each of these children. No discrimination is made between these needy cases and the more fortunate children. All eat together and there is no stigma of charity attached. In this way the morale and pride of these little children is not broken down and they can hold their heads up with any of their little friends.

The work is progressing, but much remains to be done. Arrangements have been made to call for any jars that the people of Campbell are willing to contribute. Contributions will be collected if Mrs. W. VanEvery, phone 47F2, is called. Also, any one who could donate some of their time to assist in the canning will be welcomed. If they get in touch with Mrs. VanEvery arrangements will be made for their services.

The following have been actively at work aiding the committee in the canning: Mrs. Rediker, Mrs. Abbott, Mrs. Collins, Mrs. Van Every, Mrs. Jeffers, Mrs. Farnham and Mrs. Johnson.

Those who have contributed materials include: Campbell Relief Society, 200 pounds of sugar; T. V. McCurdy, pears; George Husted, peaches; Mrs. C. L. Davidson, E. Bowden and Mrs. Young, apples; Mrs. E. C. Merrill and Mrs. T. A. Cutting, jars; E. C. Merrill donated the use of a truck for hauling and A. A. Thielke and David Bohrman have given their time in hauling the fruit.

Rev. J. H. Bennett has offered his services, and that of the Boy Scouts in collecting any fruit or jars that will be offered during the campaign.

Anyone wishing to bring in their own fruit or supplies may bring them in during the day and leave them at the cafeteria entrance of the grammar school.
